Compiled by Michael R. Ebert

Alan B. Hodish
Active citizen

Alan B. Hodish of East Meadow has been chosen as the honoree for the 24th annual Geraldo Rivera Golf and Tennis Classic to be held May 19 by Life's WORC, a Garden City-based nonprofit that supports individuals with developmental disabilities. Hodish, who is being recognized for his "continued civic and community involvement," worked as a teacher and coach in the Hempstead School District for more than 20 years and founded the law offices of Alan B. Hodish LLC in Garden City in 1993. He is a past president of the East Meadow Chamber of Commerce and a former member of the Nassau County Bar Association's board of directors.

Alan E. Weiner
Accountant

Alan E. Weiner of Plainview has received the Distinguished Service Award from the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants based on his "exceptional work, vision and contributions to the New York accounting community." Weiner, a founding tax partner and partner emeritus at Melville-based accounting firm Holtz Rubenstein Reminick, served as the society's president from 1999 to 2000 and created its hall of fame. He also has chaired the society's tax division oversight and partnerships and LLCs committees and chaired the international tax committee of DFK International, global accounting and consulting firm.

Karen Henley
Alzheimer's advocate

Karen Henley of Westbury received the 2011 Advocate of the Year Award from the Coalition of New York State Alzheimer's Association Chapters for "exemplary service to the Alzheimer's community." She's a legal assistant in real estate and previously worked in the closing department of Uniondale-based law firm Rivkin Radler. She is also involved with the Long Island Alzheimer's Foundation and the Alzheimer's Foundation of America and is credited with helping the Alzheimer's Association pass the National Project Act, a legislative initiative approved by President Barack Obama in January.

Steve Kornfeld
Investigative accountant

Steve Kornfeld of Lynbrook recently received the 2011 Mentoring Achievement Award from the Mentoring Partnership of Long Island in Hauppauge for his volunteer efforts mentoring students at elementary and middle schools across Nassau County since 2008. Kornfeld has served as an investigative accountant in the Nassau County District Attorney's Office since 1999 and before that worked as an accountant in the New York State Comptroller's Office. He is also a current board member of the Lynbrook Little League.
