

“Cat-Palooza” adoption event under way in Port Jeff Station

By Samantha Brix | August 25, 2011 in News, Uncategorized

Have you been yearning for a feline friend to cuddle up with? Want your home to be filled with the sound of “meow?” Or perhaps you’re in the market for some kitty litter scooping.

An adult cat adoption called “Cat-Palooza” is under way at the Save-A-Pet Animal Rescue and Adoption Center in Port Jefferson Station .

The center, which works with the Brookhaven Animal Shelter, has reached its cat capacity and can no longer accept strays. The center is therefore offering cats for adoption for free, to those who have submitted approved applications, until Aug. 28. All cats are tested for Feline Leukemia Virus and the Feline Immunodeficiency Virus.

For more information, contact Save-A-Pet at 473-6333 or go to www.saveapetli.net.

samantha@northshoresun.com